

STRATHMORE DEVELOPMENT COMPANY LAUNCHES STREAMLINED WEB-BASED PROJECT COLLABORATION APPLICATION

Ann Arbor, MI, May 18, 2004 — Strathmore Development Company recently launched new web-based programs, developed by Logic Solutions of Ann Arbor, which are helping to coordinate and streamline communications between a vast array of professionals involved in the commercial real estate arena. With LogicEnsemble, a team-based collaboration portal, Strathmore can now make detailed information critical to a project's success immediately available to investors, general contractors, subcontractors, architects, engineers, and related personnel via the Web on a 24/7 basis.

Strathmore has also utilized Logic Solutions' Website Management Suite to create its new website at www.strathmoredev.com. This program allows secure and economical web content management that is end-user controlled without having to assign a third party to develop the backend or additional staff to maintain its database.

Strathmore has capitalized on the Website Management Suite's most valuable benefit: its user-friendliness. The suite operates much like a word processing program such as MS Word. HTML programming knowledge is not required. Collaborating with Logic Solutions has enabled Strathmore to complete its very detailed, multi-page Internet site in less than two weeks, capitalizing on another important factor: cost.
